

The infrastructure layer for automated, brand-aware content.

Managed video production today. A self-serve content platform and developer API tomorrow.

Too slow

Production cannot keep up with channels.

Too expensive

Agencies and editors do not scale cheaply.

Too hard to manage

AI tools still need judgment and brand context.

THESIS

Most businesses already hold the raw material for great content: clips, calls, webinars, brand guidelines. It just never becomes finished video. Puffin Ship closes that gap, and the system gets better with every delivery.

WHY NOW

Demand is rising

More video across more channels, with no matching production capacity.

AI is ready

It can now produce finished content, not just edit existing clips.

Workflows are the data

Whoever owns production owns the data that makes automation reliable.

WHAT WE DO TODAY

We run a managed production service: you send raw material, we deliver polished short-form video every month. Doing the work ourselves trains the platform under real production pressure. Sold to direct businesses, agencies, and expert-led founders. The service is the wedge, not the destination.

From a managed service to content automation infrastructure.

One platform that turns source material into finished content across formats, sold as software and a developer API.

Expand formats

Video first, then podcasts and audio, social posts and newsletters, and multi-format campaigns from one set of source material.

Open the platform

Customers move from managed service, to assisted platform use, to self-serve software they run themselves.

Ship the API

Developers build brand-aware content automation directly into their own products and workflows.

THE MOAT, A COMPOUNDING LOOP

Generate

Raw material and an objective in, AI-generated edits out.

Review

Operators rank and select, customers approve or revise.

Learn

Decisions train future edits and customer-specific brand memory.

More customers, more videos, more feedback, better automation. We grow revenue faster than headcount: videos delivered per operator hour improves over time, and customers graduate toward self-serve and API revenue.

WHAT WE ARE RAISING FOR

Prove the model works, then scale through software.

Product engineering

Harden the operator platform.

Training infra

Capture the loop that compounds.

Acquisition

Sales and operator hiring.